The Stitched Aesthetic :The Art of Repair inspired by Japanese Textiles

Japanese textiles that have been pieced, patched, repaired and passed down from generation to generation are known as boro. The embroidered and repaired cloths embrace the concept of 'wabi sabi', beauty in an object's impermanence and imperfection, making a feature of the repair is an alternative to the art of invisible mending.

Jewellery-Viking Knitting -NEW-

Learn how to create an intricate chain to create an individual piece of jewellery using textile techniques and metal wire. Similar to French knitting, Viking knitting is a surprisingly easy way to make woven wire chain for bracelets and necklaces and to enclose objects such as precious stones!

The Environmental Aesthetic: Beeswax Fabric -NEW-

Wax covered fabric is an eco-friendly, reusable alternative to plastic wrap that hugs bowls with just the right amount of cling. It's perfect for wrapping snacks, fruit, veggies, cheese, bread and even bowls, and even sandwiches can be wrapped and sealed by winding a string around a button.
